JACKSONVILLE, FLORIDA USA – Friday February 13, 2009 – BluePrint Data, for Friday the 13th, announced that its URL / Web page filtering products are now available in 13 languages. This includes Arabic, Chinese, Dutch, English, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Polish, Portuguese, Russian, and Spanish languages.

BluePrint Data provides its URL filter and content filtering database and technology and services to Internet Security vendors and companies. This includes Unified Threat Management (UTM), Managed Security Service Providers (MSSP) and Software as a Service (SaaS). We also provide Internet Filtering solutions and services to Information Technology Solutions Providers and Value Added Resellers (VARs) as well as Telecom and Carriers. BluePrint Data has the world's largest 100% human reviewed URL Filter Database with web site domain reviews covering over 800 million web pages.

"Thirteen Languages, for Friday the 13th, could that be a coincidence?" asked Bob Dahlstrom, BluePrint Data's CEO. He further said, "We believe that the Internet is universal and that our services should be also be universal. Now BluePrint Data's products and services can help make the Internet a better and safer place for everyone not just those that speak a particular language".
